

James Schwartz is a professional photographer raised and schooled in Detroit, Michigan. After graduating from the College for Creative Studies in 1997, James spent six years in Detroit pursuing a career in commercial photography. Now based in Minneapolis, he is the co-founder of 3zero8 photographic, a multi-media creative studio. With a diverse client list, his commercial work has taken him all over the world. James has traveled extensively over Asia, Eastern Europe, and South America capturing the life and spirit of various cultures through film and still photography.

De·par·ture. A divergence or deviation, as from an established rule, plan, or procedure.
A departure from range finder film and chemistry. A departure from commercial pursuits. A departure from the pressure to create art.